HARVARD STUDENTS TO GIVE OWN PLAYS HERE

First Spring Tour.

47 Workshop of Harvard has departed from the precedent of giving only private performances by arranging for a spring tour under the direction of George P. Baker, professor of dramatic literature. The company, which will be composed of Harvard and Radeliffe players and present only works composed by the class, will give matinee performances at the Little Theatre in New York on April 18 and 19, and later in other cities of the State. The Harvard Club of New York will sponsor the production in that city. One play, a comedy, and three one act plays, all written by students in English 47 at Harvard, known as the 47 Workshop, will be presented. 47 Workshop of Harvard has de-known as the 47 Workshop, will be presented.

The Glee Club, in conjunction with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will sing the one act "Parsifal" at two performances this week, a departure which establishes a new record of achievement.
